The Lincoln Homestead stands on the southeast side of the Linville Creek Road, in the heart of the beautiful Mennonite farm country of Rockingham County. The house is a substantial Shenandoah Valley Federal-style brick dwelling built in two sections. The original, or front section, is a two-story brick structure covered by a gable roof with a six room, three-on-three plan and center stair hall. The two rooms on the north side have corner fireplaces with mantels. The large room on the south side of the hall has its fireplace centered on the south wall. The original first floor mantels, thought to have been made by the cabinetmaker named Schultz, who made the front doorway, unfortunately have been removed.

The brick on the facade is laid in Flemish bond with thin mortar joints, while the sides are in common bond. There is an unornamented three-course belt course between the first and second floors. The bricks were made locally and have been painted in recent years. At the base of the front slope of the roof is an elaborate wooden cornice with Wall-of-Troy molding, corbels and dentils. The splayed lintels with keystones over the front and side windows are of limestone. The original small-pane sash has been replaced by two-over-two sash.

One of the outstanding architectural features of the house is the beautiful Federal-style doorway. The opening is flanked by fluted pilasters supporting entablatures ornamented with pateras. The doorway's cornice is a small-scale version of the main cornice, having corbels and Wall-of-Troy molding. The door is topped by a round arch transom with interlacing "Gothic" tracery. Unfortunately the pediment with its open tympanum has been sawn off at the ceiling line of the modern three-bay porch across the house's front.

The two-story brick rear ell, built in 1849, originally was a detached structure. It was joined to the main house with a masonry connection on the early 1900's. None of the farm's early outbuildings remain.

On the hill to the north of the house is the Lincoln family cemetery in which are buried five generations of the family. Among those buried is "Virginia John" Lincoln, great-grandfather of the President; Jacob Lincoln, builder of the nearby house; and Uncle Ned and his wife Queen, the last of the Lincoln slaves. Until recently the cemetery was poorly maintained but responsibility for it has been taken over by the Rockingham Historical Society which is restoring and maintaining the property.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

In 1768, John Lincoln, his wife, five sons and four daughters moved from Berks County Pennsylvania into the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia where he purchased 600 acres of land on Linville Creek, now in Rockingham County. "Virginia John" Lincoln's eldest son Abraham, who married in Rockingham County, was the father of Thomas Lincoln, born on Linville Creek in 1776. In 1782 Abraham, with his family, including Thomas, migrated to central Kentucky. There Thomas married Nancy Hanks and became the father of Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States.

One of John Lincoln's younger sons, Jacob, built the two-story brick house located less than a half mile from the site of John Lincoln's original house. John Lincoln's house was since destroyed and Jacob Lincoln's substantial home became the seat of the Virginia branch of the Lincoln family. The house is an unusually sophisticated example of Federal-style architecture for an area where most of the farmhouses follow the more provincial Pennsylvania German architectural tradition. According to a traditional account, Jacob Lincoln hauled mahogany from New York or Pennsylvania and had a local cabinetmaker named Schultz make fine furniture from it for the house. Schultz was also employed to carve the mantels and handsome front doorway for the house. The mantels have been removed and only the doorway remains to testify to Schultz's skill.

The house remained in the Lincoln family until 1874 when it was sold to the Bowman family. The place was long the home of Samuel M. Bowman, a prominent farmer of the Linville Creek Valley. Despite the passing of the property from the Lincolns, the cemetery with its five generations of Lincolns, including the family patriarch, John Lincoln, remains a witness to the family's deep-seated connections with Rockingham County.
